Diabetic Retinopathy Screening Camp

Tranz-Life in collaboration with Jinnah Medical College Hospital (Shaheed-e-Millat Campus) arranged free Diabetic Eye Screening Camp for two days in October. Thirty patients were screened and those who found to have changes in retina were referred for appropriate treatment. Diabetic retinopathy is a disease that affects up to 80% diabetics and is one of the most common chronic retinal diseases worldwide. Several studies have shown that early treatment of diabetic retinopathy is effective to prevent 90% of vision loss and this requires screening. Tranz-Life Clinical Research Organization is focusing on under-recognized and under treated disease areas in Pakistan such as diabetic retinopathy.

Diabetes can damage retina, which may lead to blindness

If you are diabetic for more than 10 years, then you are at risk for changes in the eye that may affect your vision.

TranzLife arranges Free Eye Screening for diabetic patients, with latest technology digital camera, that looks for changes at the back of the eye.

These changes may lead to loss of vision if left untreated.

Venue: Jinnah Medical College Hospital
Time: 10:00 AM - 4:00 PM

Egas-certificate Of Achievement

Clinical laboratory plays main role in making diagnosis, tailoring treatment and follow up management. In order to attain reliable test results both Internal and the external quality controls are of paramount significance .esp. participation in external quality assurance programs works as an indicator to gauge regular routine and Retrospective performance of a clinical laboratory. In view of determining a quality performance of Jinnah Medical College Hospital (Shaheed-e-Millat Campus) laboratory, we started External Quality Assessment Schemes (EQAS) to provide improved patient care and safety and first cycle of 12 months from June 2017 July 2018 in department of clinical biochemistry/chemical pathology has been completed. Our results are within acceptable to very good performance ranges (95%-100%). This indicates quality and reliability reports of our laboratory. Good performances provide confidence that patients are providing proper diagnosis and management esp. in critically care services like us where accurate diagnosis is most urgent required.

Egas Poster Presentation

Two research papers of Dr. Shireen Mansoor, Assistant Professor, Chemical Pathologist from Pathology Department was accepted for presentation in The 41st Annual Conference of Pakistan Association of Pathologists and 6 Joint International Conference of Societies of Pathology held from 9 of November to 10 of November 2018 at Pearl Continental Hotel Rawalpindi / Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Rawalpindi. The topics for platform oral presentation was on BMI and other life-style associated risk factors among apparently healthy private medical college student and the second topic is on the role of EQAS in order to show the performance of clinical laboratory. This conference offers a unique opportunity for clinicians and experts all over world to contribute their research and knowledge.

Congo Virus

Dr. Mahwash Bizanjo, Consultant Infectious Diseases at JMCH, conducted this two days session for the doctors, nurses & paramedics, she told that "Humans are infected by bite of infected Ixodid ticks or by contact with blood or tissues of viremic patients or animals. This may occur primarily in hospital setting causing nosocomial spread. The disease is characterized by abrupt onset of fever, headache, fatigue, and myalgia, as well as gastrointestinal symptoms, such as nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea. The prevention and control should be both at community level as well as in hospital set up. Minimizing human contact with suspected livestock and use of unpasteurized dairy products should be discouraged".

MEDICARE CALENDAR 2019

Our yearly calendar issue is convenient and helps maintaining a good balance of work and reminders throughout the year.
